ATTEMPT MADE TO ROB NEW HOLLAND BANK

TOWN ISOLATED AS THREE YEGGS CUT PHONE CABLES; MERCHANT OFFICER BOUND

First National Bank of Village Thought Object of Trio of 'Desperate' Bandits; Told Tied Officer of Their Plans to Get Money

SAY WOMAN'S ACT FRIGHTENED MEN AWAY

Phone Operator Turned on Lights in Room; Phone Service Disrupted for More Than Five Hours, Local Phones Still Out

Robbery of the First National bank of New Holland was narrowly averted early Thursday morning when three bandits who bound the village merchant policeman with wire then cut telephone cables, completely isolating the town, were frightened and fled in their automobile.

Although the robbers did not take time to attempt to gain entrance to the banking institution, of which George Kirk is president, it is certain that was their plan since one of them, who remained to guard Jesse Johnson, 55, the policeman, told him that was their purpose.

Johnson was in the joint firehouse and village jail at 1:45 a. m. when two men appeared at the door carrying a can and asked him where they could find some gasoli[ne] for their automobile. Johnson, unsuspecting, walked outside the door to direct them and immediately found revolvers pressed against his sides.

TIED WITH WIRE

He was ordered back into the building where he was blindfolded and his arms tied with wire. His revolver was taken from him.

One of the men remained with Johnson in the rear of the building and when he heard two voices outside, the policeman decided there must be two other men. After a few minutes the bandits took Johnson from the fire house into the jail. The man was then left ungarded. He worked himself loose from the wire and started in search of help.

In the meantime, Mrs. Laura Ruble, 45, manager of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., exchange at night, because aware of an unusual noise in the wires. She opened the connection asking "Number, please" but received no answer. She suspected something was wrong and tried to connect her office with the Washington C. H., exchange. It was then that she learned the cables had been cut.

TURNED ON LIGHTS

She walked to the window of her office which is on the second floor of the building next to the bank building but did not see anyone. As the wires dropped to the street, she turned on the lights of the office.

When Johnson stepped out of the jail house into the street — after Mrs. Ruble had turned on the telephone office lights—he thought he heard an automobile traveling fast in the direction of Washington C. H.

Johnson found a pile of blankets lying outside the jail. It is thought these were to have been used by the robbers to muffle the sound of blowing the bank's safe.

The man ran to the home of Joe McQuay, whom he aroused, and borrowed another revolver. McQuay, it is reported fired two shots into the air in an effort to frighten the bandits if they had not already left the village. Johnson went to the home of Mr. Kirk, the bank president, who with his son, George, finding the wires down, drove to Washington C. H., to notify officers of the attempted robbery.

RADCLIFF NOTIFIED

While the attempt happened at between 1:45 and 2 a. m. Sheriff Charles Radcliff was not notified until 4.05 a. m. by a call from Washington C. H., through Chillicothe. He, with Deputies Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell, with their machine guns, rushed to New Holland. They found Sheriff C. S. Minton and members of his office also there.

Johnson was able to give but meager description of the bandits. He determined no attempt had been made to rob the bank when he returned after notifying Mr. Kirk. He said the yeggs must have been in New Holland about 45 minutes.

All toll cables of the New Holland telephone exchange were down for five hours after they had been cut. No connections could be made with either Circleville, Washington C. H., Chillicothe or Columbus. Workmen were immediately sent to the village from Ohio Bell offices to make repairs. Only a few local phones were in use.

NOW SEEK TO CANCEL DEBT

New Move Made In House of Commons As Note Reaches Washington.

LONDON, Dec. 1.— Within a few hours after Great Britian's new war debt note to the United States was sent to Washington a new movement was launched in the House of Commons today for complete cancellation.

A. C. N. Dixey, Conservative M. P., announced that he would move the following resolution in the House at the earliest opportunity.

"Resolved that a British government cannot command the confidence of the nation unless it immediately notifies the United States of its decision to support entire cancellation of all war debts."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.— Great Britain's renewed plea for debt postponement, pending revision downward of the whole war debt structure, reached chilly Washington today.

It is to be followed shortly by a similar note from France, also requesting delay and further leniency as to terms.

The new British note was to be laid officially before President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson during the day by the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay.

There is scant prospect that the new notes will in any way change the situation, despite the "great optimism" reported in London dispatches. Congressional opinion against postponing the December payments and against any tinkering with the existing debt structure is so solidified as to make London's optimism seem wholly unfounded.

Woman Asserts Man Slew Babes With His Hands

DAUPHIN, Man., Dec. 1.— In the little Dauphin jailhouse today sat Mrs. Peter Yachup, recounting her strange story of a four-year romance with Fred Stowisky, her farm neighbor. Mother of five living children, Mrs. Yachup confessed, according to the authorities, that she gave birth to the five babies whose bodies were discovered buried in apple boxes in her back yard.

She accused Stowisky of having been the father of the babies and of having strangled them to death while she looked on.

Stowisky, a widower and father of three children, sat in another cell of the jail, glumly refusing to utter a word. With Mrs. Yachup he faces trial in Assizes court for infanticide.

Court authorities and Royal Canadian mounted police officials, hardened by years of contact with many fantastic crimes of this wild region, expressed shocked amazement at the story related by Mrs. Yachup.

BETTMAN FOR NEW TAX LAW

Attorney General Says Intangible Act Is Constitutional In Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.— Ohio's new intangible tax act is a "state tax" and not a local tax and therefore is constitutional, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman declared here today at a hearing before the state supreme court.

The hearing was on an appeal for a reversal of the judgement of the Hamilton-co common pleas court and appellate courts holding unconstitutional the sections of the act dealing with the distribution from one county to another of portions of the intangible tax fund.

Millions of dollars are now tied up in various county treasuries throughout Ohio's as a result of the litigation.

"A tax levy imposed directly by the state legislature, whether it be a tax on property, tangible or intangible, or a tax on the rights privileges and franchises, is a state tax levy," Bettman contended.

He asserted that the character of a tax is determined by the law which authorizes its imposition and not by the use made of the revenue thus derived.

ASHVILLE DADS SEEK SLASH IN UTILITY RATES

Gas, Electric and Power, and Telephone Companies on Defensive

CITIZENS DEMAND

Claim Phone Company Service Inadequate

Three utility companies, Ohio Fuel Gas, Ashville Light & Power and Citizens Telephone, have been "placed on the spot" by the Ashville village council and by the Community Club of that town during the past few days.

The object is reduction in rates in each instance and improvement of service in one case.

E. L. Lepper, district superintendent of the gas company, and George Foerst, local manager, have appeared before the Ashville council in the interests of their firm and have informed the villagers that next year an increase in rates of 15 cents per month per customer will go into effect, as per a contract now existing between the company and the council. The minimum charge will remain $1 Mr. Lepper has pointed out.

It is now planned to draw up a petition for circulation in the village to be presented to the gas company asking that no increase be made in rates at this time. A large majority of the townspeople favor a slash instead of an increase.

SEE NO DIFFICULTY

It is expected the matter of gas can be hatched out with no difficulty.

New rates loom with the light and power company since the council has ordered Emmett L. Crist, prosecuting attorney, and solicitor for the village, to inform the utility that when new rates are made they must be lower. It has been proposed in council that a rate of 6 cents for the first 40 kilowatt hours, 4 cents for the next 40 killowatt hours, and 3 cents for all over be approved but no vote has been taken.

The light company is asking a ten year contract, it is said, and proposed rates of 8 cents per kilowatt for the first 40 kilowatt hours, 6 cents for the next 40 and 3 cents for all over. Present rates are 10 cents for each kilowatt hour for the first 25 kilowatt hours, 7 cents for the next 50 and 3 1-2 cents for all over that amount.

It is possible the light squabble will go to the state utilities commission.

ASSAIL PHONE CO.

The Citizen Telephone Co. was attacked in no meek manner this week when the Community Club met. The club members were almost unanimous in regarding present service and rates as unsatisfactory.

It was moved by George A. Hook, merchant, that a petition be prepared asking the company for a reduction rates and an improvement in service in whatever way possible. The motion was properly seconded and carried by a majority vote, several voting 'no' being unfavorable to the wording of the petition.

Mr. Hook was probably the chief spokesman at the meeting and said "There are now so few telephones in town residences and on the farms that phones are of little service to the business man." George Messick asserted that "Local radio interference has resulted from inadequate telephone equipment."

At present, it was estimated at the meeting, there are 400 phones on the Ashville exchange about two-thirds of the number a year ago.

DEMANDS FOR FEDERAL HELP FACE REFUSAL

Washington D. C. to Give Cold Reception to Hunger Marchers

POLICE IN WARNING

Communists Leading Party to Capitol

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Final plans for a chilly reception to the hunger marchers descending on Washington were shaped today as representatives of the marching columns conferred with district and federal officers.

The marchers sought a conference with Vice-president Curtis and Speaker Garner, and were to call on Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown at the latter's instance.

Officials warned the marchers they were fighting a futile battle in their demand for $50 per unemployed worker with an additional $10 for each dependent, from the treasury, and warned against illegal demonstrations. The marchers, on the other hand, announced they would not peaceably back down. Herbert Benjamin of New York, secretary, and William Reynolds, chairman, of the Communist National Unemployed Councils, represented the marchers.

ARRESTS PROMISED

Police and federal authorities announced no demonstrations would be allowed, and warned that any violations of the police edit against soliciting would result in arrests. Benjamin and Reynolds said the marchers would "resist all efforts to rob us of our constitutional rights." These, they continued, include the right to parade before the capitol. They sought a permit for this from Curtis and Garner today.

Reynolds said he and Benjamin had made "some progress" in efforts to arrange for housing and feeding the marchers, in spite of police edicts.

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 1.—Reenforced by a group of 68 Youngstown sympathizers the Northern division of the "hunger army" left Youngstown today for Pittsburgh the next stop in the march on Washington.

REFUSE ANY AID

With Youngstown authorities refusing to furnish any aid for the contingents the marchers spent last night in quarters provided by communist organizations police said.

The marchers were orderly during their stay here although a disturbance was threatened when three of the leaders were taken into custody for questioning by police. The three men were released within an hour as a large crowd of marchers gathered in front of the jail to demand that they be freed.

BETTMAN FOR NEW TAX LAW

Attorney General Says Intangible Act Is Constitutional In Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.— Ohio's new intangible tax act is a "state tax" and not a local tax and therefore is constitutionl, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman declared here today at a hearing before the state supreme court.

The hearing was on an appeal for a reversal of the judgement of the Hamilton-co common pleas court and appellate courts holding unconstitutional the sections of the act dealing with the distribution from one county to another of portions of the intangible tax fund.

Millions of dollars are now tied up in various county treasuries throughout Ohio's as a result of the litigation.

"A tax levy imposed directly by the state legislature, whether it be a tax on property, tangible or intangible, or a tax on the rights privileges and franchises, is a state tax levy," Bettman contended.

He asserted that the character of a tax is determined by the law which authorizes its imposition and not by the use made of the revenue thus derived.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Miss Mildred Tomlinson of Williamsport, underwent a major operation at Berger hospital Wednesday night.

Miss Ida Boyer was returned to her home on N. Court-st, from Berger hospital, where she underwent a tonsil operation.

CALL DREISBACH FOR FEDERAL JURY

The court convenes next Tuesday.

"WHERE AM I?" CORPSE REMARKS

TRENTE A MARE, Rumania, Dec. 1.—Villagers here sought three grave robbers today to pay them for having brought a "dead" woman back to life.

The ghouls raided the grave of Mme. Josefine Nagy, wife of a farmer. They fled in terror after opening the casket when she sat up and asked:

"Where am I?"

Girl, Hysterical, Leaves Stand

Society Girl Leaves Room As Cross-examination Is Started.

NEW CITY, N. Y., Dec. 1.— Crying out "I don't want to remember!" Charlotte Gibson, society girl, for whose seduction Sidney Herbert Homewood is being tried here, was assisted from the witness stand in hysterics this morning.

Although previously calm to the point of passivity, the tall brunette, who is to be a mother this month sobbed and cried and held her head in her hands when Charles Finkelstein, Homewood's attorney pressed her for details of her defloration.

Judge George H. Taylor, Jr., called a recess, and the girl made her way in a state of agitation to the counsel room reserved for her.

As she went, Homewood followed. He was unnoticed in the crush of curious spectators who followed, but in the anonymity of the crowd his face reflected great concern. He fingered his cravat nervously. He looked embarrassed.

WHITE FACES NEW ATTACK

Action of Governor In Supporting Cave Assailed By Akron Democrat.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.—Governor George White was bitterly assailed today by State Representative-elect Gus Kasch, Akron Democrat, for his action in publicly announcing support of Representative Frank Cave of Mansfield, for the speakership of the Ohio House of Representatives.

In a heated letter to the Governor, Kasch asked.

"Who made you judge of the action of the Democratic caucus for a dictator over its proceedings."

Kasch demanded to known "by what right or authority of law or Ohio constitution are you (Gov. White) determining who shall be chosen speaker."

TAGS ON SALE

Automobile license tags went on sale today in Ohio with Mayor B. T. Hedges dispensing the tags here through his position of deputy motor vehicle commissioner.

The plates cannot be put on automobiles before Dec. 20.

Other dispensers of tags in this county are George P. Hunsicker of Williamsport, Frank Hudson of Ashville and O. Miller Beckett of Commercial Point.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Metzger of Williamsport, announce the birth of a daughter, named Kathryn Lee, last Monday.

ASHVILLE DADS SEEK SLASH IN UTILITY RATES

Gas, Electric and Power, and Telephone Companies on Defensive

CITIZENS DEMAND

Claim Phone Company Service Inadequate

Three utility companies, Ohio Fuel Gas, Ashville Light & Power and Citizens Telephone, have been "placed on the spot" by the Ashville village council and by the Community Club of that town during the past few days.

The object is reduction in rates in each instance and improvement of service in one case.

E. L. Lepper, district superintendent of the gas company, and George Foerst, local manager, have appeared before the Ashville council in the interests of their firm and have informed the villagers that next year an increase in rates of 15 cents per month per customer will go into effect, as per a contract now existing between the company and the council. The minimum charge will remain $1 Mr. Lepper has pointed out.

It is now planned to draw up a petition for circulation in the village to be presented to the gas company asking that no increase be made in rates at this time. A large majority of the townspeople favor a slash instead of an increase.

SEE NO DIFFICULTY

It is expected the matter of gas can be hatched out with no difficulty.

New rates loom with the light and power company since the council has ordered Emmett L. Crist, prosecuting attorney, and solicitor for the village, to inform the utility that when new rates are made they must be lower. It has been proposed in council that a rate of 6 cents for the first 40 kilowatt hours, 4 cents for the next 40 killowatt hours, and 3 cents for all over be approved but no vote has been taken.

The light company is asking a ten year contract, it is said, and proposed rates of 8 cents per kilowatt for the first 40 kilowatt hours, 6 cents for the next 40 and 3 cents for all over. Present rates are 10 cents for each kilowatt hour for the first 25 kilowatt hours, 7 cents for the next 50 and 3 1-2 cents for all over that amount.

It is possible the light squabble will go to the state utilities commission.

ASSAIL PHONE CO.

The Citizen Telephone Co. was attacked in no meek manner this week when the Community Club, met. The club members were almost unanimous in regarding present service and rates as unsatisfactory.

It was moved by George A. Hook, merchant, that a petition be prepared asking the company for a reduction rates and an improvement in service in whatever way possible. The motion was properly seconded and carried by a majority vote, several voting 'no' being unfavorable to the wording of the petition.

Mr. Hook was probably the chief spokesman at the meeting and said "There are now so few telephones in town residences and on the farms that phones are of little service to the business man." George Messick asserted that "Local radio interference has resulted from inadequate telephone equipment."

At present, it was estimated at the meeting, there are 400 phones on the Ashville exchange about two-thirds of the number a year ago.

NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY; POLICEMEN FIGHT

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.—A fight—right in police headquarters—between the chief of a suburban police force and one of his patrolmen, became the subject of an official investigation today with the chief unable to enjoy the proceedings due to a scalp laceration.

Fists, a chair, a rifle and a blackjack were used in a battle which broke out between Chief Ralph A. Hammar and Patrolman Clarence D. Reed at Bexley, O., headquarters. Reed has a black eye.

Mayor Stephen E. Ludwig was told that the fight started because the patrolman said the brakes on the department automobile were faulty, and the chief denied it. The patrolman took his protest to the mayor and the chief objected to "insubordination."

KIDNAPER'S VICTIM

Patricia Pearl Tripp, 4-year-old Rensselear, Ind., child who was kidnaped from the home of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin H. Smith, Rensselear farmers. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tripp, died two years ago.

WOMAN SHOT BY BANDITS

Toledo Woman Sitting Behind Gangster Companion Shot To Death.

TOLEDO, Dec. 1.—Wounded in a barrage of machine gunfire that police said was intended for her reputed gangster companion, Miss Louise Bell, 28, died in a local hospital today.

The woman was struck as she was sitting with Jack Kennedy, 24, alleged bootlegger, in an automobile on a downtown street. Bullets blazed from two machine guns operated by four men in another machine, endangering the lives of pedestrians and several persons in the Toledo interurban station nearby.

Police attributed the shooting to a bootleg feud. Kennedy was taken into custody for questioning.

The gunmen sped away rapidly after the shooting. They were riding in an automobile bearing Michigan license plates. It was reported to have headed for Detroit.

OWN GUN TAKES LIFE OF FARMER

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1.—Fred A. Seydler, 83, of East Columbus, was dead today from a shotgun wound received yesterday while he was hunting on his farm near here. The shotgun was discharged as Seydler was attempting to climb a fence.

Death from "causes unknown," was the verdict returned my Coroner C. C. Smith. The coroner stated, however, that the death "appeared to be an accident."

Movie Romance?

Joan Blondell, beautiful screen player, is shown with George Barnes, movie cameraman, as they hold a little tete-a-tete at Palm Springs, Cal., where they are vacationing. Hollywood gossips confidently predict that the pair will soon trip to the altar, but no engagement has been announced as yet.

DEMANDS FOR FEDERAL HELP FACE REFUSAL

Washington D. C. to Give Cold Reception to Hunger Marchers

POLICE IN WARNING

Communists Leading Party to Capitol

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Final plans for a chilly reception to the hunger marchers descending on Washington were shaped today as representatives of the marching columns conferred with district and federal officers.

The marchers sought a conference with Vice-president Curtis and Speaker Garner, and were to call on Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown at the latter's instance.

Officials warned the marchers they were fighting a futile battle in their demand for $50 per unemployed worker with an additional $10 for each dependent, from the treasury, and warned against illegal demonstrations. The marchers, on the other hand, announced they would not peaceably back down. Herbert Benjamin of New York, secretary, and William Reynolds, chairman, of the Communist National Unemployed Councils, represented the marchers.

ARRESTS PROMISED

Police and federal authorities announced no demonstrations would be allowed, and warned that any violations of the police edit against soliciting would result in arrests. Benjamin and Reynolds said the marchers would "resist all efforts to rob us of our constitutional rights." These, they continued, include the right to parade before the capitol. They sought a permit for this from Curtis and Garner today.

Reynolds said he and Benjamin had made "some progress" in efforts to arrange for housing and feeding the marchers, in spite of police edicts.

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 1.—Reenforced by a group of 68 Youngstown sympathizers the Northern division of the "hunger army" left Youngstown today for Pittsburgh the next stop in the march on Washington.

REFUSE ANY AID

With Youngstown authorities refusing to furnish any aid for the contingents the marchers spent last night in quarters provided by communist organizations police said.

The marchers were orderly during their stay here although a disturbance was threatened when three of the leaders were taken into custody for questioning by police. The three men were released within an hour as a large crowd of marchers gathered in front of the jail to demand that they be freed.

MISS M'CLELLAND, LAURELVILLE, DIES

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Laurelville Methodist Episcopal church for Miss Esther Marie McClelland, aged 35, who died in White Cross hospital, Columbus, Tuesday at 11 p. m. of complications after an operation.

Interment will be in Green Summit cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

Miss McClelland, besides her mother, Mrs. Eliza McClelland of Laurelville, is survived by two brothers, Ray of Stoutsville and Pearl of near Laurelville, and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Asher of Laurelville and Mrs. Guy Mowery of near Stoutsville.

TAKE CAST FROM DR. HOUSE'S HIP

Dr. O. W. House, well known Williamsport man, was taken to White Cross hospital Wednesday in the C. E. Hill invalid car where a cast was removed from his hip. He was later returned to his home where he will be confined for at least 10 days.

What caused Dr. House's ailment even he does not know. He has been kept at home for quite a while.

MISS KIRCHOFER HAS OPERATION

Miss Ethel Kirchofer, superintendent of Berger hospital, underwent an operation Thursday for the removal of her tonsils. Dr. C. G. Stewart performed the operation.

FAVOR MICHIGAN TO PLAY COAST ELEVEN

Poll of Big Ten Schools Shows Approval For Trip To Be Given.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The Big Ten conference faculty committee at its meeting here Saturday will vote to permit the University of Michigan to send its championship football team to Pasadena, Calif., for the annual Tournament of Roses game January 1, it became increasingly evident today.

All signs, if signs are to be believed, indicated that a change of sentiment has taken place among Big Ten authorities, favoring a temporary abrogation of the conference rule against post-season contests.

From Ann Arbor came a report that Fielding H. Yost, Michigan's athletic director, has received assurances in a private poll that a majority of the Big Ten conference school authorities look with favor on the proposal that Michigan be allowed to play the University of Southern California in the annual East-West classic.

PREDICT APPROVAL

Yost was quoted as predicting that the conference faculty committee will approve Michigan's participation in the Pasadena game when that body convenes Saturday.

Reports from the west coast state that Southern California awaits only the Big Ten committee's action before extending an invitation to Michigan, preferring the Wolvernes to either Colgate or Auburn as their opponents.

Because of a guarantee of approximately $50,000 which would be assigned as its share of the Pasadena game proceeds, permission to participate would come as a boon to Michigan, aiding the institution in retiring and paying interest on its stadium bonds.

On the Michigan campus sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of sending the All-American Harry Newman and his mates to the west coast for the tournament game.

Only two conference schools—Northwestern and Wisconsin—were hesitant in supporting the proposed abrogation of the rule.

HICKEY CASE OUT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1. —The $25,000-damage suit of Umpire James A. Murray against Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Baseball association, stood dismissed today. At the direction of Judge C. H. Breidenbach a circuit court jury returned a verdict in Hickey's favor. Discharged from the American association in 1926, Murray, in his complaint, charged he had been blacklisted and prevented from working for three years. The Judge ruled he had presented insufficient evidence.

Won Golf Plum

Densmore Shute, modest 28-year-old professional golfer of Columbus, Ohio, who did magic tricks with his clubs to overcome early leaders and win first place and $2,520 in prize money in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore open golf tournament at Coral Gables, Fla. Shute made the last 18 holes in 73, carding 292 for the entire tourney of 72 holes.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

AS was expected Miami and Ohio universities carried off the honors when the annual All-Buckeye conference team was selected * * * Miami won four positions and Ohio three * * * But the surprise of the whole thing is that Leonard Fertig, Miami's great fullback, is left off the first "11" and put at the smashing position on the second * * * Leonard Sadosky of Ohio University is given the first team berth.

Don Peden

There can be one answer to that selection; that is that Miami already had two backfield men on the team, Roudebush at quarterback and Clinger at halfback, so things wouldn't look so good with three from one school listed * * * To name one outstanding football player in the Buckeye conference this year, we'd pick Fertig after seeing him against Ohio Wesleyan and reading of him against Ohio University and other teams.

Fertig passed for two touchdowns in the Bishop encounter, smashed the line to smithereens and backed up the line like a Mike Miles of Princeton several years ago * * * In the Athens game he passed for one touchdown and smashed over for the other—his team scored 16 points to Ohio's none * * * Just what more one man could do to gain an honorary berth is beyond the conductor of this colyum * * * But then strange things have happened in the conference before recalling to mind the fact that Edgar Westfall, rated on several all-American selections a year ago, was left off the all-Buckeye team.

ROUDEBUSH is given the signal-barking position because he is the smartest field general in Ohio, not barring Ohio State's quarterbacks * * * He seemed to know what to call and when and he can be given credit for possessing the ability to make the Pop Warner system, used by Frank Wilton, work in the proper fashion * * * Roudebush does the punting for his team in a fair manner and he does not carry the ball often but with Fertig, Clinger and Robinson, why need he tote the pigskin?

Wilton

Ott of Miami and Slaughter of Cincinnati make the end positions; Bill Snyder of Ohio University and Stewart of Miami, the tackles, with Stewart being named captain of the team; Johnny Raugh of Ohio Wesleyan and Douds of Wittenberg the guards with Joe Colvin of Ohio at center.

On the second team were Sidinger of Cincinnati at quarterback, Wright of Wittenberg and Brown of Ohio U. at halfback and Fertig of Miami at full. Bennett of Ohio Wesleyan and Collins of Ohio U. at ends. Shepherd of Denison and Ruck of Cincinnati at tackles; Neimi of Miami and Ellisor of Denison at guards and Kerekes of Miami at center

Coach Don Peden of Ohio U. missed placing other men because of injuries in the Navy game * * * Bernard McCashin would have made a line position and Henry Corradini, a quarterback would probably have replaced Roudebush at the signal-calling position * * * Wesleyan men receiving honorable mention were Barber and Sayers, tackles; Wertz and Vandervort, halfbacks.

RAUGH HONORED

DELAWARE, Dec. 1 Johnny Raugh of Altoona, Pa., a guard, today had been elected as the honorary captain of the Ohio Wesleyan football team for 1933. Roy Bennett of Dayton, an end, was voted the most valuable man. Both men are seniors.

Title At Stake As Sparts And Green Bay Meet

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 1 — With a world's championship title at stake Portsmouth Spartans are preparing to entertain the Green Bay Packers at Universal stadium here next Sunday afternoon before the largest crowd ever to witness a gridiron encounter in the Tri-State region.

Coach "Curly" Lambeau's charges, thrice champions of the National Football League and at the top of the heap so far this season with 10 victories, one tie and but one setback on their record must hurdle the Spartan's "17 iron men" as well as stave off the Chicago Bears a week later before they can call the pennant theirs and take it from Spartan boosters, that's a long, long trail to follow. They point with pride to just as imposing an array of stars in the Spartan line-up, who likewise have dropped but one game all season—a team they say which would rather play the Packers than eat when hungry. They haven't forgotten the run out the Wisconsin eleven staged on the Ohioans last season when Spartans were again runners up and were threatening the pennant aspirations of the same Packers. Moreover it has been several seasons since Portsmouth has lost a game in its own stadium.

LONG AWAITED MEETING

With extra seats being built for Sunday's classic and local merchants dolling for the gala event, Portsmouth offers a college town atmosphere alike to that of the good old days. It will be the football battle of the century. A Spartan victory, say the wise ones, will put the title on ice for the Ohioans, since if Portsmouth stops Green Bay's long winning streak they believe the formidable Bear aggregation will follow suit. The Bears, however, still have a mathematical possibility of dividing honors for the pennant, but that is another story. Fans have waited long to see Spartans and Packers fight it out for national honors.

Now quartered in Columbus after their successful eastern invasion Green Bay is holding afternoon and evening workouts in the state capital while Spartan charges, with Coach Posty Clark at the helm, are whipping themselves into final form for Sunday's battle. The Packers, who exclusive of their impressive 1932 record, have rolled up 2727 points to 747 scored against them and have won 114 games while losing 33 and tieing 16 in previous seasons, boast such famous stars as Nate Barrager, pivot man de luxe; Herber, passing ace; Johnny Blood, last year's leading pro loop scorer; Lewellen who had the same honor the year before; Hank Bruder, fleet Northwestern halfback and Cal Hubbard, tackle. Green Bay carries the full 22 men limit on its roster with every man of All-American calibre.

BABE HERMAN GOES TO CUBS

Cincinnati Trades 'Clown' To Chicago For Pitcher, Catcher, Fielders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Fans in half a dozen major league cities are going to have a tough time recognizing their favorite ball club next spring.

With dissatisfied managers threatening a thorough housecleaning, and such outstanding stars as Al. Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, Rogers Hornsby, Bill Walker and Babe Herman given a change of scenery in advance of the big league meetings, the most sensational trading season in the history of the game already is assured.

Owners of the richer clubs are "shooting the works" on the theory one star is worth four or five ordinary hired men. Taking more chances than an old-time Mississippi river gambler, the Giants shipped four players to the Cardinals for a young, hustling catcher and an untried rookie pitcher. And last night the Clubs gave the Reds four players—Bob Smith, veteran pitcher; Rollie Hemsley, catcher; and Outfielders Johnny Moore and Lance Richbough—for Babe Herman, the clown prince of swat.

HERMAN COLORFUL

The acquisition of the eccentric Babe gives the Clubs what they have needed since the departure of Hack Wilson—a home run hitter and a colorful drawing card. Herman, handicapped by a huge playing field at Cincinnati will hit a mess of four-baggers next season with those short Chicago fences as a target.

Even the world's champion Yankees, well supplied with trading material, are going to partake in the swapping sessions this month. It was announced today that Manager Joe McCarthy will attend the minor league convention in Columbus next week to "look around." Several clubs, including Detroit, are interested in New York's utility outfielders, Sam Byrd and Myril Hoag, and McCarthy will part with either if he can get what he wants in exchange.

DEERCREEK-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

Attendance for the past month showed a slight decline due to bad weather and slight illnesses. The average per cent of attendance in the grades was 95 per cent, which makes an average daily attendance of 305. There were 277 pupils not absent or tardy. During the month 3 new pupils entered, and 10 withdrew making our present enrollment 348.

First place in the attendance contest was again won by the 8th grade. The second grade placed second and the fourth grade placed third.

The Honor Roll for the second six weeks is as follows:

FIRST GRADE

SECOND GRADE

Mary Alice Buskirk, Virginia Buskirk, Betty Hill, Bennie Lemaster, Paul Schein, Mary Alice Puffinbarger, Frank Schleich, Helen Schleich. Normagene Schleich, Dale Smith, Elizabeth Stonerock, Mildred Wing, and Frances Wright.

THIRD GRADE

Judith Ann Ater, Nellie Brown, Donald Cook, Marlene Ebenhack, Florence Hasting, Billy Heiskell, Fern Lingo, Mary Alice Luellen, Franklin Maxson, Eleanor Smith, Robert Tootle, Harold Harmount and David Pickens.

JUNIORS

Doris Coates, Pauline Jones, Wanna Straley, Alice Tipton, and Robert Carter

SENIORS

Mary Kay Baker, Eleanor Luellen, Genevieve Malone, Lawrence Ater, Fred Corcoran, and Charles Hasting.

School will dismiss for the Christmas holidays Friday evening Dec. 23, and resume work again Monday Jan. 2.

The first home basketball game of the season will be played here with Saltcreek Friday evening. Admission has been reduced to 20c for adults, and 10c for children. Both teams were defeated last week by Perry, by large scores. A new and inexperienced boys team, slightly undersize has found the going tough. We do, however, believe that they show possibilities. The girls teams showed considerable promise against Perry. With Eleanor Luellen back in the line up they should come out on the long end of the score in a majority of games.

We are pleased to announce that the following students will represent our school in the All-State County High School Chorus: Helen Hill, Soprano: Eleanor Luellen, Altos: Alice Tipton, Mary Kay Baker, and Fred Corcoran basses, Rogert Carter, Galen Carter.

This chorus which is composed of students from rural high schools all over the state will give a concert in Memorial Hall, Columbus, O., Wednesday evening, Dec. 28, at 8.00 p. m.

This concert is given as a part of the program of the Ohio Educational Association which meets in Columbus during the holidays. However, the public is invited to this concert. There is no admission charge and anyone able to attend should avial themselves of this opportunity.

It will be at least three months before another congress can deliver its diagnosis of the acts of the dear departed.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our primary department gave a very interesting Thanksgiving program last Wednesday afternoon. A special Washington Bicentennial number was included. Several patrons came to the program.

At our regular assembly Monday morning we celebrated the close of the Washington Bicentennial period by listening to an address by Dr G. A. Bricker of Washington D C. Dr. Bricker is one of the special bicentennial speakers and has delivered his address before 176 schools and colleges in Ohio during the past year. He succeeds admirably in portraying the human side of the Father of Our Country. Teachers and pupils are agreed that the message was very much worth while.

Mr. Bradley and his Future Farmers of America club members had a big parents banquet Tuesday evening of this week. Dr. Stewart of the Smith-Hughes Department, Representative Bonhert of Pickaway County and Editor Geib of the Circleville Herald are the principal speakers. Short responses by officials of the club and the school with Mr. Athaus as toastmaster are included on the program. An attendance of approxibately 60 persons is expected.

The 7th grade won the attendance honors for last month with a record of 98.7 per cent. The third grade was second with 98.2 per cent. The average for the entire school was nearly 97 percent. The girls of the high school and the boys of the eight grade also ranked above 98 per cent.

The eighth grade won the prize in the P. T. A. membership contest and has been awarded a year's subscription to The National Geographic. The next meeting of the P. T. A. will be Tuesday, Dec. 13th. Everyone is invited.

A number of the good ladies of the community are meeting at the school building once a week to make clothing out of the cloth which has been furnished by the Red Cross. They are using the school's sewing machines and sewing room.

Mr Burkart of the Heff-Jones Co. was here Tuesday to see the Juniors about their class jewelry.

Each class in our school, twelve in all, took memberships in The American Red Cross. The pupils brought pennies, nickles and a few dimes to help in this great cause. We all feel that this arganization is doing a greet deal of good for people all over the nation and we are glad to have a small part in that great work.

Our opening game with Saltcreek last week resulted in victories for their girls and our boys. Both games were rather close most of the time gave the spectators plenty of excitement. This week we go to Kingston. Next week Ashville comes here.

FAVOR MICHIGAN TO PLAY COAST ELEVEN

Poll of Big Ten Schools Shows Approval For Trip To Be Given.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The Big Ten conference faculty committee at its meeting here Saturday will vote to permit the University of Michigan to send its championship football team to Pasadena, Calif., for the annual Tournament of Roses game January 1, it became increasingly evident today.

All signs, if signs are to be believed, indicated that a change of sentiment has taken place among Big Ten authorities, favoring a temporary abrogation of the conference rule against post-season contests.

From Ann Arbor came a report that Fielding H. Yost, Michigan's athletic director, has received assurances in a private poll that a majority of the Big Ten conference school authorities look with favor on the proposal that Michigan be allowed to play the University of Southern California in the annual East-West classic.

PREDICT APPROVAL

Yost was quoted as predicting that the conference faculty committee will approve Michigan's participation in the Pasadena game when that body convenes Saturday.

Reports from the west coast state that Southern California awaits only the Big Ten committee's action before extending an invitation to Michigan, preferring the Wolverines to either Colgate or Auburn as their opponents.

Because of a guarantee of approximately $50,000 whica would be assigned as its share of the Pasadena game proceeds, permission to participate would come as a boon to Michigan, aiding the institution in retiring and paying interest on its stadium bonds.

On the Michigan campus sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of sending the All-American Harry Newman and his mates to the west coast for the tournament game.

Only two conference schools—Northwestern and Wisconsin—were hesitant in supporting the proposed abrogation of the rule.

HICKEY CASE OUT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1. —The $25,000 damage suit of Umpire James A. Murray against Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Baseball association, stood dismissed today. At the direction of Judge C. H. Breidenbach a circuit court jury returned a verdict in Hickey's favor. Discharged from the American association in 1926, Murray, in his complaint, charged he had been blacklisted and prevented from working for three years. The Judge ruled he had presented insufficient evidence.

Densmore Shute, modest 28-year-old professional golfer of Columbus, Ohio, who did magic tricks with his clubs to overcome early leaders and win first place and $2,520 in prize money in the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore open golf tournament at Coral Gables, Fla. Shute made the last 18 holes in 73, carding 292 for the entire tourney of 72 holes.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

AS was expected Miami and Ohio universities carried off the honors when the annual All-Buckeye conference team was selected * * * Miami won four positions and Ohio three * * * But the surprise of the whole thing is that Leonard Fertig, Miami's great fullback, is left off the first "11" and put at the smashing position on the second * * * Leonard Sadosky of Ohio University is given the first team berth.

Don Peden

There can be one answer to that selection; that is that Miami already had two backfield men on the team, Roudebush at quarterback and Clinger at halfback, so things wouldn't look so good with three from one school listed * * * To name one outstanding football player in the Buckeye conference this year, we'd pick Fertig after seeing him against Ohio Wesleyan and reading of him against Ohio University and other teams.

Fertig passed for two touchdowns in the Bishop encounter, smashed the line to smithereens and backed up the line like a Mike Miles of Princeton several years ago * * * In the Athens game he passed for one touchdown and smashed over for the other—his team scored 16 points to Ohio's none * * * Just what more one man could do to gain an honorary berth is beyond the conductor of this colyum * * * But then strange things have happened in the conference before recalling to mind the fact that Edgar Westfall, rated on several all-American selections a year ago, was left off the all-Buckeye team.

ROUDEBUSH is given the signal-barking position because he is the smartest field general in Ohio, not barring Ohio State's quarterbacks * * He seemed to know what to call and when and he can be given credit for possessing the ability to make the Pop Warner system, used by Frank Wilton, work in the proper fashion * * * Roudebush does the punting for his team in a fair manner and he does not carry the ball often but with Fertig, Clinger and Robinson, why need he tote the pigskin?

Wilton

Ott of Miami and Slaughter of Cincinnati make the end positions; Bill Snyder of Ohio University and Stewart of Miami, the tackles, with Stewart being named captain of the team; Johnny Raugh of Ohio Wesleyan and Douds of Wittenberg the guards with Joe Colvin of Ohio at center.

On the second team were Sidinger of Cincinnati at quarterback; Wright of Wittenberg and Brown of Ohio U. at halfback and Fertig of Miami at full; Bennett of Ohio Wesleyan and Collins of Ohio U. at ends; Shepherd of Denison and Ruck of Cincinnati at tackles; Neimi of Miami and Ellison of Denison at guards and Kerekes of Miami at center.

Coach Don Peden of Ohio U. missed placing other men because of injuries in the Navy game * * * Bernard McCashin would have made a line position and Henry Corradini, a quarterback would probably have replaced Roudebush at the signal-calling position * * * Wesleyan men receiving honorable mention were Barber and Sayers, tackles; Wertz and Vandervort, halfbacks.

RAUGH HONORED

DELAWARE, Dec. 1.— Johnny Raugh of Altoona, Pa., a guard, today had been elected as the honorary captain of the Ohio Wesleyan football team for 1933. Roy Bennett of Dayton, an end, was voted the most valuable man. Both men are seniors.

Title At Stake As Sparts And Green Bay Meet

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 1.— With a world's championship title at stake Portsmouth Spartans are preparing to entertain the Green Bay Packers at Universal stadium here next Sunday afternoon before the largest crowd ever to witness a gridiron encounter in the Tri-State region.

Coach "Curly" Lambeau's charges, thrice champions of the National Football League and at the top of the heap so far this season with 10 victories, one tie and but one setback on their record must hurdle the Spartan's "17 iron men" as well as stave off the Chicago Bears a week later before they can call the pennant theirs and take it from Spartan boosters, that's a long, long trail to follow. They point with pride to just as imposing an array of stars in the Spartan line-up, who likewise have dropped but one game all season—a team they say which would rather play the Packers than eat when hungry. They haven't forgotten the run out the Wisconsin eleven staged on the Ohioans last season when Spartans were again runners up and were threatening the pennant aspirations of the same Packers. Moreover it has been several seasons since Portsmouth has lost a game in its own stadium.

LONG AWAITED MEETING

With extra seats being built for Sunday's classic and local merchants dolling for the gala event, Portsmouth offers a college town atmosphere alike to that of the good old days. It will be the football battle of the century. A Spartan victory, say the wise ones, will put the title on ice for the Ohioans, since if Portsmouth stops Green Bay's long winning streak they believe the formidable Bear aggregation will follow suit. The Bears, however, still have a mathematical possibility of dividing honors for the pennant, but that is another story. Fans have waited long to see Spartans and Packers fight it out for national honors.

Now quartered in Columbus after their successful eastern invasion Green Bay is holding afternoon and evening workouts in the state capital while Spartan charges, with Coach Posty Clark at the helm, are whipping themselves into final form for Sunday's battle. The Packers, who exclusive of their impressive 1932 record, have rolled up 2727 points to 747 scored against them and have won 114 games while losing 33 and tieing 16 in previous seasons, boast such famous stars as Nate Barrager, pivot man de luxe; Herber, passing ace; Johnny Blood, last year's leading pro loop scorer; Lewellen who had the same honor the year before; Hank Bruder, fleet Northwestern halfback and Cal Hubbard, tackle. Green Bay carries the full 22 men limit on its roster with every man of All-American calibre.

BABE HERMAN GOES TO CUBS

Cincinnati Trades 'Clown' To Chicago For Pitcher, Catcher, Fielders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.— Fans in half a dozen major league cities are going to have a tough time recognizing their favorite ball club next spring.

With dissatisfied managers threatening a thorough housecleaning, and such outstanding stars as Al. Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, Rogers Hornsby, Bill Walker and Babe Herman given a change of scenery in advance of the big league meetings, the most sensational trading season in the history of the game already is assured.

Owners of the richer clubs are "shooting the works" on the theory one star is worth four or five ordinary hired men. Taking more chances than an old-time Mississippi river gambler, the Giants shipped four players to the Cardinals for a young, hustling catcher and an untried rookie pitcher. And last night the Clubs gave the Reds four players—Bob Smith, veteran pitcher; Rollie Hemsley, catcher; and Outfielders Johnny Moore and Lance Richbough—for Babe Herman, the clown prince of swat.

HERMAN COLORFUL

The acquisition of the eccentric Babe gives the Clubs what they have needed since the departure of Hack Wilson—a home run hitter and a colorful drawing card. Herman, handicapped by a huge playing field at Cincinnati will hit a mess of four-baggers next season with those short Chicago fences as a target.

Even the world's champion Yankees, well supplied with trading material, are going to partake in the swapping sessions this month. It was announced today that Manager Joe McCarthy will attend the minor league convention in Columbus next week to "look around." Several clubs, including Detroit, are interested in New York's utility outfielders, Sam Byrd and Myril Hoag, and McCarthy will part with either if he can get what he wants in exchange.

It will be at least three months before another congress can deliver its disgnosis of the acts of the dear departed.

DEERCREEK-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

Attendance for the past month showed a slight decline due to bad weather and slight illnesses. The average per cent of attendance in the grades was 95 per cent, which makes an average daily attendance of 305. There were 277 pupils not absent or tardy. During the month 3 new pupils entered, and 10 withdrew making our present enrollment 348.

First place in the attendance contest was again won by the 8th grade. The second grade placed second and the fourth grade placed third.

The Honor Roll for the second six weeks is as follows:

FIRST GRADE

Patricia Jane Ater, Jack Clark, Herbert Coates, Harvey Easter, Eugene Hays, Forrest Harmount, Florence Henson, Anna Hiles, Helen King, Jr. McFarland, Paul Neff, Harvey Pickens, Mary Jane Puffinbarger, Doris Lee Schleich, Mina Shull, Milton Tootle.

SECOND GRADE

Mary Alice Buskirk, Virginia Buskirk, Betty Hill, Bennie Lemaster, Paul Schein, Mary Alice Puffinbarger, Frank Schleich, Helen Schleich, Normagene Schleich, Dale Smith, Elizabeth Stonerock, Mildred Wing, and Frances Wright.

THIRD GRADE

Judith Ann Ater, Nellie Brown, Donald Cook, Marlene Ebenhack, Florence Hasting, Billy Heiskell, Fern Lingo, Mary Alice Luellen, Franklin Maxson, Eleanor Smith, Robert Tootle, Harold Harmount and David Pickens.

FOURTH GRADE

Virginia Ater, Rosemary Clark, Geraldine Grover, Twila Hays, Betty McGhee, Ruby Neff, Oren Neff, Virginia Puffinbarger, Harold Schein, Dorothy Schleich, Mary Alice Schleich, and Frances Warner.

JUNIORS

Doris Coates, Pauline Jones, Wanna Straley, Alice Tipton, and Robert Carter.

SENIORS

Mary Kay Baker, Eleanor Luellen, Genevieve Malone, Lawrence Ater, Fred Corcoran, and Charles Hasting.

School will dismiss for the Christmas holidays Friday evening Dec. 23, and resume work again Monday Jan. 2.

The first home basketball game of the season will be played here with Saltcreek Friday evening. Admission has been reduced to 20c for adults, and 10c for children. Both teams were defeated last week by Perry, by large scores. A new and inexperienced boys team, slightly undersize has found the going tough. We do, however, believe that they show possibilities. The girls teams showed considerable promise against Perry. With Eleanor Luellen back in the line up they should come out on the long end of the score in a majority of games.

We are pleased to announce that the following students will represent our school in the All-State County High School Chorus: Helen Hill, Soprano; Eleanor Luellen, Altos; Alice Tipton, Mary Kay Baker, and Fred Corcoran, basses; Rogert Carter, Galen Carter.

This chorus which is composed of students from rural high schools all over the state will give a concert in Memorial Hall, Columbus, O., Wednesday evening, Dec. 28, at 8:00 p. m .

This concert is given as a part of the program of the Ohio Educational Association which meets in Columbus during the holidays. However, the public is invited to this concert. There is no admission charge and anyone able to attend should avial themselves of this opportunity.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our primary department gave a very interesting Thanksgiving program last Wednesday afternoon. A special Washington Bicentennial number was included. Several patrons came to the program.

At our regular assembly Monday morning we celebrated the close of the Washington Bicentennial period by listening to an address by Dr. G. A. Bricker of Washington D. C. Dr. Bricker is one of the special bicentennial speakers and has delivered his address before 176 schools and colleges in Ohio during the past year. He succeeds admirably in portraying the human side of the Father of Our Country. Teachers and pupils are agreed that the message was very much worth while.

Mr. Bradley and his Future Farmers of America club members had a big parents banquet Tuesday evening of this week. Dr. Stewart of the Smith-Hughes Department, Representative Bonhert of Pickaway County and Editor Geib of the Circleville Herald are the principal speakers. Short responses by officials of the club and the school with Mr. Athaus as toastmaster are included on the program. An attendance of approxibately 60 persons is expected.

The eighth grade won the prize in the P. T. A. membership contest and has been awarded a year's subscription to The National Geographic. The next meeting of the P. T. A. will be Tuesday, Dec. 13th. Everyone is invited.

G. O. P. FIGHTS REPEAL VOTE

Rep. Snell May Cause Split In His Party Ranks Over Question.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. — A split in Republican ranks today increased chances of passage of the Democratic outright prohibition repeal resolution in the House on Monday.

While the proposal of Speaker Garner for a first day vote was criticized by Rep. Snell of New York, Republican floor leader, Meads of the Republican "wet bloc" supported it.

"My position all along has been that we should dispose of the question of repeal speedily, but I never intended that it should be voted on as the Democrats propose without any time for consideration," said Snell.

He will confer with other Republicans on the question.

Snell claimed Rep. Milligan (D) of Missouri, assistant party whip, had "no authority" for saying 125 Republicans would support the repeal resolution because that many have not returned here yet.

BANK ROBBERY

Thursday the greater portion still hung down.

THANK OPERATOR

Residents of the village are of the opinion that Mrs. Ruble's act of turning on lights in her office frightened the bandits away.

Johnson was of the opinion, Thursday, that the men were desperate. "One of them talked to me all the time." he said, "and told me they didn't want to hurt me but would kill if it was necessary. They said they were going to rob the bank and had machine guns in case any trouble appeared in their path."

It was not long after the 'scare' that the greater part of the village was roused. A hacksaw, thought to have been used by the men, was found at the foot of the telephone pole early this morning. No finger-prints could be found on the saw or any other articles with which the yeggs might have come in contact.

First reports in this city Thursday morning were that the bank had been robbed after the safe had been blasted open.

This incident is the first of an exciting nature which has occurred in New Holland since the H. E. Louis store was held up, and Josef Louis, son of the storekeeper, shot at by Adrian Combs, Dayton bandit, who is now serving a long sentence in Ohio penitentiary for committing the crime.

SAY HINDENBURG TO RETIRE SOON

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Government officials commented anxiously today on reports that the grand old man of German politics, President Paul Von Hindenburg, contemplated retiring to private life.

Despite flat denials from the foreign office there was any truth in the story, official circles buzzed with speculation over the possibility of Von Hindenburg's retirement and the effect it would have on the fate of the Reich.

The gossip was started by a story in the newspaper Der Deutsche, which said the octogenarian field marshal, who has guided the destinies of his nation for years, was tempted to throw up his job through anger over Germany's tangled internal preliament.

The ghastly, yellow light of the eclipse was not distinguishable from the depression.

Two Greatest "Bargain" Of All Bargains Is Your Telephone

If you bought some tool for your house, you might ask "How many uses has it?" And if you received the answer "A thousand," you wouldn't believe it, would you?

Yet, did you ever stop to think that your telephone has many, many thousands of uses? Everything you do, and everything you have, is influenced in some way or some manner by the telephone. It is your modern "Aladdin's Lamp"—an instrument of untold worth, always awaiting your slightest command. Whenever anyone talks about values, remember that the greatest of all bargains is your telephone.

The Atlanta team won their second consecutive victory this season by defeating the Williamsport teams here Wednesday evening.

The girls game was a one sided affair which the Atlanta lasses won by a score of 40-17. Our girls are showing much improvement and if they can take Ashville into port Friday night, should be able to be a contender in the tournament this year. Stevenson was high scorer for Atlanta with 20 points and Overly for Williamsport with 14 points.

The boys game was a lop-sided affair with our boys coming out on the long end of of a 35 to 12 count. The lads from Deercreek found it hard to penetrate the Atlanta defense and couldn't stop the fast pass work of the Perry team which usually netted a basket. Morris was the offensive star with 14 points.

Pearson of Columbus officiated the game. Friday night, Dec. 2, Ashville comes here for two games which should test the strength of Perry's teams.

The box score for Wednesday nights games is as follows:

WAITS 100 YEARS

FORT PLAIN, N. Y.—The first hundred years are the hardest in which to get your name in the paper, according to Miss Margaret Limley, centenarian whose biggest thrill was in seeing her name in the press for the first time on her hundredth birthday.

BREAKS PRECEDENT

FAIRFIELD, Ill.—The religious sect of the Pentacostal Church here broke precedent of many years standing when they voted at a recent election. They had refrained from voting in past years because they considered it contrary to the teachings of their religion.

It won't be long now until the festive season is upon us. At this time one can offer no more sound advice than to repeat the old slogan: "Do your Christmas shopping early." Here is lovely Marion Nixon, screen star, who believes in being well ahead of schedule. Not only has she done her buying, but already she has dispatched most of her presents. She is shown about to dispose of another cargo.

Court News

YOUNG MAN JAILED

Earl Wagner, 23, of Williamsport, was fined $10 and costs and committed to 20 days in the county jail by Justice of the Peace Frank Maley of Deercreek-twp, after he was arrested Wednesday afternoon by sheriff's deputies, Bob Armstrong and Miller Fissell on a charge of petit larceny.

Wagner is alleged to have stolen corn and other articles from the farm of George Pickens in Deercreek-twp.

IN CHARGE OF ESTATE

Mrs. Dora Brown was appointed administratrix of the estate of the late Kathleen Frazier in Judge E. A. Brown's court Wednesday afternoon.

The estate of the deceased was valued at $348 and Mrs Brown gave an administratrix bond of $800.

Richard Simkins represents the administratrix in the estate.

COOKSON DIVORCE

Grace Irene Cookson was granted a divorce from Carl W. Cookson, Canal Winchester, Wednesday afternoon in Common Pleas Judge J. W. Adkins' court, on grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Adkins and Adkins were attorneys for the plaintiff in the suit.

DARBY SCHOOL NOTES

The Thanksgiving Program was attended by a number of the patrons last Wednesday afternoon. The boys and girls did their parts very creditably, thus making an enjoyable program. The program for Christmas will be the evening of Dec. 24. This will be put on by the grade pupils and will be free to the public.

The Monroe basketball teams our guests last Tuesday night in two well-played games. The Monroe boys went home with a 34-10 victory while their girls suffered an 18-7 defeat. Our teams play out of the County this Friday night at Madison Mills. We hope to have a good following to encourage the players to do their best. Then our old rivals, Scioto, come here on Dec. 9.

The attendance the past month has been unusually good. Miss Dorothy Minshall's room won the attendance flag with a percentage of 98.8.

Miss Alice Toops of Harrisburg gave a very interesting talk to the school last week about Labrador and her experiences there as a teacher.

G. O. P. FIGHTS REPEAL VOTE

Rep. Snell May Cause Split In His Party Ranks Over Question.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. — A split in Republican ranks today increased chances of passage of the Democratic outright prohibition repeal resolution in the House on Monday.

While the proposal of Speaker Garner for a first day vote was criticized by Rep. Snell of New York, Republican floor leader, Meads of the Republican "wet bloc" supported it.

"My position all along has been that we should dispose of the question of repeal speedily, but I never intended that it should be voted on as the Democrats propose without any time for consideration," said Snell.

He will confer with other Republicans on the question.

Snell claimed Rep. Milligan (D) of Missouri, assistant party whip, had "no authority" for saying 125 Republicans would support the repeal resolution because that many have not returned here yet.

BANK ROBBERY

Thursday the greater portion still lying down.

THANK OPERATOR

Residents of the village are of the opinion that Mrs. Ruble's act of turning on lights in her office frightened the bandits away.

Johnson was of the opinion, Thursday, that the men were desperate. "One of them talked to me all the time," he said, "and told me they didn't want to hurt me but would kill if it was necessary. They said they were going to rob the bank and had machine guns in case any trouble appeared in their path."

It was not long after the 'scare' that the greater part of the village was roused. A hacksaw, thought to have been used by the men, was found at the foot of the telephone pole early this morning. No finger-prints could be found on the saw or any other articles with which the yeggs might have come in contact.

First reports in this city Thursday morning were that the bank had been robbed after the safe had been blasted open.

This incident is the first of an exciting nature which has occurred in New Holland since the H. E. Louis store was held up and Josef Louis, son of the storekeeper, shot at by Adrian Combs, Dayton bandit, who is now serving a long sentence in Ohio penitentiary for committing the crime.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—you feel younger in body—Kruschen will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

But be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—and SAFETY first is the Kruschen promise.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts from any leading druggist anywhere in America (lasts 4 weeks) and the cost is but little. If this first bottle doesn't convince you this is the easiest, SAFEST and surest way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.—Adv.

DARBY SCHOOL NOTES

The Thanksgiving Program was attended by a number of the patrons last Wednesday afternoon. The boys and girls did their parts very creditably, thus making an enjoyable program. The program for Christmas will be the evening of Dec. 24. This will be put on by the grade pupils and will be free to the public.

The Monroe basketball teams our guests last Tuesday night in two well-played games. The Monroe boys went home with a 14-10 victory while their girls suffered an 18-7 defeat. Our teams play out of the County this Friday night at Madison Mills. We hope to have a good following to encourage the players to do their best. Then our old rivals, Scioto, come here on Dec. 9.

The attendance the past month has been unusually good. Miss Dorothy Minshall's room won the attendance flag with a percentage of 98.8.

Miss Alice Toops of Harrisburg gave a very interesting talk to the school last week about Labrador and her experiences there as a teacher.

An Ominous Trend

SOME of the greatest milestones of modern times are marked by the onward march of collectivism. On all sides may be observed a rapid development of paternalism in government which would have been anathema only a few decades ago.

Two states are held as the outstanding example of collectivism—Soviet Russia and Fascist Italy. In the one aim of elevating state above private rights these otherwise antithetic nations meet on common ground.

Other states are little less backward in assuming a collectivist complexion, though in less spectacular fashion. Germany disburses though its various public organs nearly 50 per cent of the national income, or not much less than the Soviet Union, thus standing equally as a silent witness to the decay of individualism.

England, too, has its economic advisory council, its ramified social services, and contain many champions of an industrial subparliament on the German model. Even the division of industry into state supervised monopolies is proposed. Ten years ago these pioneers would have incurred derision as visionary, almost dangerous Socialists.

France, often held up as the home of individualism, has recently adopted a state program for supporting workless and aged members of the community. Even the Orient, where formerly government was the antithesis of collectivism, is breaking away from tradition.

America is the last stronghold of individualism, but even here the theory that neither federal nor state governments should perform what private agencies might perform as well is losing ground. More and more government is going into business and not even its failures in agriculture and banking have stemmed the tide toward collectivism.

No More Insull-ation

THERE are teeth in the federal water power act and the federal power commission has shown a determination to use them indiscriminately where the might of utilities runs away with their season. This must be apparent, by this time, to all companies coming under jurisdiction of the act.

Recent court decisions uphold the regulatory methods of the commission and will encourage it to extend its efforts for the protection of the public. With these decisions behind it the commission will supervise utility financing to prevent another Insull bubble. This is for the protection of both the consumer and the investor.

Machinery set up will involve no dual control by federal and state agencies, but will rather abolish that dangerous twilight zone in which power interests have been given a free hand, sometimes to the deteriment of consumers and investors.

Judging from the thoroughness with which the commission is going about the enforcement of the mandate given it by congress the country in the future will be relatively secure against rate gouging and Insull-ating by interstate power enterprises. Nor need this be accomplished at the price of a stunted power development. Proper control will promote rather than stifle initiative in the utility field.

OHIO NORTHERN TO ASSIST GRADUATES

ADA, O., Dec. 1.—A plan to aid high school graduates who delayed entering college last Fall because of financial troubles was announced today by Ohio Northuniversity.

Students may save a year by enrolling for courses of instruction at Ohio Northern on January 3, and complete the freshman requirements by attending the Winter, Spring, and Summer quarters. Under this plan the students will be as far advanced as if they had entered in September.

Students may enroll in the college of Liberal Arts, including the divisions of teacher training, physical education, and music; in the colleges of Pharmacy, Law, and Engineering.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

"I'll place your money in the savings bank. If you are careful it may last you four years. Hardly more. I'll have my living from the plantation and will send you all my salary above what is required for my clothes."

The fire went out of her. She dropped her head on his knees sobbing brokenly. She knew this was not an idle threat. It was true. He couldn't go with her—knowing why she went. But—oh, I can't give up Jimmie. I can't. I can't. It isn't right of him to ask it . . . But he doesn't . . . He accepts it . . . Only, he won't be party to it . . . because he considers it . . . burglary.

"Dadums, it isn't burglary!" she sobbed. "Aunt Pam doesn't love him. Doesn't want him."

"Have you asked her for him?"

"Of course not. How could I ask her such a thing!"

"Why not? If she had a hat or a frock or a jewel that she didn't want, you wouldn't feel free to take it merely because you knew she didn't want it, would you? You'd first ask her if you might have it, wouldn't you?"

"Yes." Her voice was smothered.

"Then why take her husband without asking her consent?"

She lifted her head. Tears streamed down her face. "Oh, Dadums, how could one do a thing like that? It would be awful."

"Dear, you imply that a husband is a little more valuable perhaps than a hat or a frock or even a jewel. So much more, in fact, that the only possible way to take him is without consent."

"Jimmie doesn't belong to her," she said indignantly.

"Then when you take him, you won't consider that he belongs to you, and wisely. The disloyal belong to no country and nobody. I fear, my dear, we are falling into useless argument." He looked at his watch. "Isn't it time for you to dress?"

She rose with him. "Dadums, I've got to go," she said fiercely. "Maybe you don't know what it is to love as I love. I can't give him up. Right or wrong, I can't. It's like something eating inside of me here." She beat her fist on her breast. "I know you'll leave me, and that's tearing me all up. But I've got to go to him. When we're married you'll forgive me. You'll have to forgive me. If you won't come to me I'll come to you and you won't turn me out."

He took her in his arms. "You can always come to me, little baby girl. I'll never turn you out. No matter what you do, when you have need of your Dadums, his heart and arms will be open to you."

"But Dadums," she sobbed, "I can't take the money. I won't let you go to work in your old days. You take it and go to Paris. It will last you a long time. And I'll work and send you more."

"You haven't been fitted to work. You have no profession. Not even a business training. The money is yours. It will be placed to your account. I shall not be able to touch it even if I would."

"I won't have it!"

"How will you live?"

"I—I'll borrow the money."

He held her away from him. "How? One needs security to borrow money. What collateral have you to offer?"

She hung her head. "I'll — I'll borrow it from—Jimmie."

"Patricia, look at me."

She lifted her head defiantly.

"Do you mean to tell me that you would let Warren keep you?"

"It wouldn't be keeping me," she stormed. "if I borrowed it. It would be a loan."

After an appreciable pause, his eyes holding hers, he said slowly: "Every bank clerk who ever stole money did it under the cloak of that lie. You know it would not be a loan—Warren might loan you a hundred or so dollars as a matter of charity; but no man loans a woman large sums—enough to live on indefinitely when he knows he can never expect it back — unless she compromises herself."

"Oh!" She tore herself away from him and ran out of the room.

Face down on her bed, Patricia sobbed and sobbed, beating her fists against the pillow, talking aloud.

How could he say such things to me! How could he! My Dadums! How could he hurt me—shame me so! Compromise myself? Oh, how vile! I'll never let Jimmie Warren loan me a cent. Never! Never! Men have such vile thoughts. I never dreamed my Dadums had vile thoughts. . . .

And I won't take that money from Dadums! He can put it in my name if he wants to. . . . But I won't touch it. . . . He knows I won't. . . . Oh, I wish there was something I could do. . . . Why didn't he prepare me for a career! He didn't want me to be independent . . . that's why! . . . So he could say things to me like that. . . .

She sat up sharply, folding her legs under her, tailorwise, face swollen, eyes sullen. "Patricia Braithwait," she said, addressing her trunk, "you know that's a lie. He may think vile thoughts and say vile things to his child"—tears streamed—"because she can't help herself; but—but he doesn't do vile things. . . . No, and he doesn't say vile things because a person can't help herself either." She fell to sobbing again. He—he told me he was giving me the fifteen thousand before he said that . . . and it was only because I said — what I did about borrowing from Jimmie that he . . .

It's true I couldn't pay it back . . . . ever. . . . And Jimmie'd know it, too . . . he'd be giving it to me. . . . And Dadums says men don't give women . . . Oh. . . .

She flung herself back on the pillow and sobbed till she lost track of what it was about. . . .

The orchestra was playing downstairs. . . . She listened, unaware that she was listening. Mind drifting. Sobbing with no sense of hurt. Unreasonably sobbing.

Her father knocked. "Ready for dinner, Patricia?"

"I don't want any dinner."

She waited for the door to open. . . . He'd see what he had done to her. . . . He went away. He didn't care. He probably thought her too vile to care about. . . . After awhile there came another knock.

"Who is it?"

"Your dinner, Miss," said a man's voice.

"I didn't order any dinner."

"Your father ordered it for you."

She was on the point of telling the man to take it away. But she could not advertise her quarrel with her father. The waiter arranged the table and went out. . . .

I won't touch it. He can't hurt me like that, then send dinner up because I'm not fit to be seen . . . through his cruelty. When he comes up, he'll find it right there. . . .

She had exhausted her emotions. It was an effort to think why she was crying. She tried to recapture her sense of misery, got up and began pacing the floor, began dramatizing herself. She felt hard and indifferent. Thinking of Jimmie she no longer had any interest in him. Her love for her father was dead. Killed by his vile words. Her heart was empty of all feeling. . . . It didn't matter what became of her. . . . Of course she could never live with her father again . . . after such words had passed between them. And she never wanted to see Jimmie Warren again . . . since she knew the things men thought of. . . .

I'll go to New York and get a job—as a telephone girl, or a clerk in a store, or a waitress, or anything! I won't take a cent from vile-minded men. Not even my Dadums.

She stopped pacing the floor and began tearing her clothes from the closet. Flinging them on the floor. When the whole room was in disorder, she started packing furiously.

Presently she paused. "I'll have to take enough from him to get me to New York. But not another cent! I'll tell him he needn't deposit that money for me. I won't touch it."

The dinner music had stopped. The orchestra would be playing in the ballroom in a little while. . . . The crowd would be asking about her. What would Dadums tell them. Maybe some of the girls would come up to see if she were ill. Maybe they wouldn't. There was so much going on. . . . She sat on the floor, folding her clothes, packing them neatly in her trunk.

There! A fox trot. The dancing had started. They were all happy. She alone in all this vast hotel was utterly wretched. She fell to weeping again. She dried her tears resolutely; packing, finding relief from present pain in contemplation of her painful life as a working girl in a large city. She imagined herself in a hall bedroom. . . . She had never seen a hall bedroom . . . but she had read about them in stories.

* * *

At ten-thirty she was all packed. Ready to start her career as a poor working girl, with two trunks of Park Avenue clothes.

She sat down on the side of her bed to think. But her stomach was so empty it hindered thought. She decided to eat a little. She ate everything.

Nobody had come up to see if she were very ill or dying or anything. Not even her father who pretended to love her.

The telephone rang. Dadums at last, probably. She wouldn't answer. Let him think she had committed suicide over his cruelty. It rang again. She was very lonely and miserable and had nothing to do . . . with the music going downstairs . . . the evening just started. . . . She answered.

"Hello," . . . She made her voice weak.

"Come down, Pat," said Jack. "I have my boat here. The moon's up. Let's go to the opera."

"I can't. I have a headache." I have really, she thought— that is, my eyes ache. He thought of me, if nobody else did.

"Sea breeze will do your head good," he insisted. "Marvelous night."

"No, I don't feel like it, Jack. Really I can't."

"Are you in bed?"

"No-o."

"Not going to bed this early?"

It would be awful to go to bed and just lie and think. . . . "All right. I'll be down. Meet me on the back. I'm not dressed for evening. I don't want anybody to see me."

"All right."

She viewed her dishevelled appearance in the mirror, then snatched a pretty pale green frock from her trunk.

I better change. It'll be the last time he'll ever see me in evening dress. Tomorrow night I'll be gone. . . .

Diphtheria "Carrier" A Constant Health Menace

Dr. Copeland Urges Parents to Protect Their Children From This Disease by Means of the Schick Test

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ACCORDING to the United States public health service, thousands of children needlessly die each year from diphtheria. This happens in spite of the protection available against the disease.

Dr. Copeland

It is a pity that most of these fatalities are due to carelessness and neglect on the part of the parents. In most instances the children are believed to be suffering from some minor ailment, but in reality have diphtheria Often the disease is not recognized until it is too late.

Diphtheria is caused by a germ called the "diphtheria bacillus" This germ grows and rapidly multiplies in the nose and throat. Sometimes it is found in milk. Contaminated milk may produce a severe epidemic of diphtheria.

Transmitting the Disease

Contrary to a common belief, the germs of this disease die quickly when exposed to the action of sunlight and dry air The danger of transmission is chiefly from the freshly infected secretions from the nose or throat of a sufferer from this disease.

Another menace is found in that person who is a "carrier" of this disease. A diphtheria carrier is an individual who carries the diphtheria germs in his nose or throat without himself suffering from the disease. It is estimated that one to two per cent of the general population are diphtheria carriers. After an epidemic this percentage may be higher.

Diphtheria carriers and those persons who have the mild and unsuspected form of diphtheria are a constant source of danger to children and adults. They are unaware that they are dangerous and of course are constantly in contact with healthy persons. They transfer the disease, either directly or indirectly.

A common method of direct contact is through kissing. But it is probable diphtheria is most frequently transmitted by the indirect method. A common drinking cup, the drinking fountain, pencils, pins, needles, pipes, forks and spoons, are contaminated by a diphtheria carrier or infected person Their use by others results in trouble.

Is Your Child Immune?

We are constantly exposed to the dangers of diphtheria Fortunately, not all persons exposed to diphtheria contract the disease. This is because some have developed an "immunity" to diphtheria. This is an "acquired immunity" and is not found in children as frequently as in adults. By means of the "Schick test", it is possible to determine the presence or absence of this immunity

If absent, it means that if the child is exposed to diphtheria, he will contract the disease This child should receive complete protection against diphtheria by the "immunization" treatment This is simple, consisting of the injection of three doses of "toxin-anti-toxin", given at weekly intervals Six months after the last injection, it is advisable to repeat the Schick test to determine whether sufficient immunity against diphtheria is present.

Means of Protection.

The Schick test or some modification of it, should be given every child. It affords a means of protection that should not be overlooked. It is wiser to have the Schick test made than to expose your child to the possibility and danger of contracting this serious disease.

If more attention were given to the various rules of personal hygiene there would be far less disease If all individuals who are likely to have diphtheria were given proper immunization, eventually diphtheria would be eradicated.

Book Sunkist Vanities For Cliftona Theatre Next Week; From California

Coming direct from a 42-weeks engagement in Pacific coast cities, "SunKist Vanities," produced by a well-known Los Angeles company has been booked to play the Cliftona Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday matinee and night and Thursday a midnight show.

Presentation units like SunKist Vanities, well-known in the West, are fast gaining great popularity in the East through their playing the leading Fox theatres in Washington, Philadelphia, New York, also in Springfield, Worcester, Hartford and Boston. When the curtain goes up things happen without delay. The Melody Trio are in a class by themselves when it comes to playing real music. These three girls, former members of the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra, are all soloists of the first rank and their trio numbers range from classical to popular. They also furnish music for remainder of the show. Those "California Steppers," Rosita and Perez, fling their heels so fast and well that it makes you dizzy trying to follow. They offer a wide variety of dances, featuring their own original "Indiana Adagio" with beautiful costumes and special music. Furnishing a brand new line of comedy, Harry Berry introduces all the acts besides contributing a fine line of comedy himself. Harry's versatility stamps him as a "One Man Circus." He sings, dances, juggles, tumbles, plays several musical instruments, also offers an original comedy "bottle-sitting" trick that's hot.

Miss Theo Keith, who hails from Boston, is no doubt one of the world's foremost lady cornetists. She has been proclaimed as such by no less an authority than Herbert L. Clarke the renowned band leader. Miss Keith's smooth execution and triple-tongue playing is the work of a master. As an extra added attraction, Rex, the Canine Prodigy, offers an act all his own. Rex has naturally inherited a gift for the stage through his three generations of bow-wow ancestors having been born and raised on the famous Show Boat "Cotton Blossom." There are many other features in the show, including a colorful and fast Grand Finale entitled "Circus Day."

The feature picture program accompanying this attraction will be "Evening For Sale."

SANTA CLAUS WILL PILOT AIRPLANE

Many, many times stories of the prowess of Santa Claus as a driver of reindeers has been told but now he is filling a different role. With snow a scarcity in Ohio this winter, especially in Pickaway-co, old Saint Nick has learned to fly an airplane so he can get around the state in quicker and more certain fashion.

He arrives here next Wednesday and will haul passengers in his plane until Dec. 12.

Tickets for rides with Santa Claus are being provided by the Crist Department store, Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., Circleville Oil Co., and the Circleville Tire and Repair Co. R. L. Brehmer Greenhouse is another firm participating in bringing Santa Claus here but is not giving tickets for plane rides.

The Christmas shopping season will be officially opened when Santa comes next Wednesday.

INFANT IS DEAD

Ernest Reid, Jr., 9-hours-old son of Ernest and Lottie Reid of 389 Walnut-st, died Wednesday afternoon and was interred in Forest cemetery Thursday morning by Mader & Ebert.

MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

Janice Liston won first prize in the contest to get members for the P. T. A. She got 18 members, Norma Snyder 16 and third, Billy Trout with seven members. A total of 52 members were gained in this contest.

William Grabill of the fourth grade won the prize for getting the most members for the P. T. A. He had 23 members.

The fourth grade room obtained 37 members in all for the P. T. A. membership.

Several are still absent from the fourth grade, with colds, whooping cough, scarlet fever and diphtheria.

The boys and girls having perfect attendance in the fourth grade are, Junior Smith, Margaret Ann Smith, Katheryn Smith, Winifred Lemaster, Pearl Long, Ben Long, Thomas William Downs, Donald Crawford, Gladys Timmons and William Grabill.

Dale Smith of the fifth grade, is absent on account of sickness.

The Athenian Literary Society composed of the 7th and 8th grade gave a short Thanksgiving program. The program was given by the following: Lucille Timmons, Ernest Grabill, Eugene Campbell, Betty Seward, David Stoer, Weldon Hill, George Terflinger, Jeannette Pemberton, Juanita Kellar. Each one gave something original. The society will have another program in several weeks given by the other members.

The junior high school students under the supervision of Mr. Costlow, held a contest on teeth cleaning. The time given for this contest being three weeks. The junior high was divided into five sections and each section had a leader. The leader of the first row was Elizabeth Albright, the second row leader was Kenneth Walters, the third row leader was Betty Seward, the fourth row leader was Franklin Bailey and the fifth row leader was Ruth Willis. This contest was carried on with the idea that each row was a machine and the students were the tires and various parts The leader was called the pilot. Each student was supposed to clean his teeth at least once a day and each time they cleaned their teeth it counted a lap for their automobile. The names of the autos represented the rows in order were, first row, Austin; second row, Pontiac; third row, Chevrolet; fourth row, Pierce Arrow; fifth row, Rockne. The highest possible score in this contest was 130 laps. The fourth row represented by Pierce Arrow with Franklin Bailey as the pilot, won the race, their being only one boy who missed cleaning his teeth twice. The Pontiac with Kenneth Walters as the pilot, finished second with a score of 114. The Austin, with Elizabeth Albright the leader, finished third and the Rockne finished fourth with a score of 101. The Chevrolet with Betty Seward as pilot, finished last with a score of 100. The aim of this contest was to help the student get the habit of cleaning his teeth while they are young. The following never missed a day in cleaning their teeth: Esther Furniss Owen Beauman, Eugene Campbell, Judith Ann McCoy Franklin Bailey, Charles Wilkey, Darwin Allen, Weldon Hill, Ruth Haller, Robert Lewis, Kathryn Kneisley, Wilda Mae Wilkey Jeannette Pemberton, Laralie Grabill, Lucille Timmons, George Terflinger, Edwin Walters, Sarah Rutherford, Ruth Willis, Helen Howard, Eldon Crawford, Hazel Smith, Betty Seward, Elizabeth Albright, Ernest Grabill, Ruth McGath, Pauline Neal, Charles Boyd, Verne Longberry, Carl Hosler, Juanita Kellar, Grace Peart, Urcel McGath, David Stoer.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

Carole Lombard can take it.

She proved that fact conclusively to Pat O'Brien, Director Eddie Buzzell and about thirty hard boiled workers on the set of Columbia's picture, "Virtue," when she bit the powerful Mr. O'Brien slap her face hard nineteen times.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, it should be made known that a punch often can be pulled, or faked. But a slap is different. You can't pull a slap. Try it some time. Especially a resounding slap such as the one O'Brien was ordered to hand the blonde Miss Lombard.

O'Brien has to slap her 19 times, because it was necessary to rehearse the scene, then to photograph it from several different angles and, because it was such an important dramatic scene in the film, all shots were taken several times.

"Virtue," showing Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre, was adapted by Robert Riskin, author of "American Madness," from the novel by Ethel Hall. In addition to Miss Lombard and O'Brien, the cast includes Willard Robertson, Ward Bond, Shirley Grey and Ed Le Saint.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Hot Saturday," the story of a girl who walked home from a Saturday-night date, but awoke Sunday morning to find she might have saved herself the trouble, has been booked for the Cliftona Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

Cary Grant, Nancy Carroll and Randolph Scott have the leading roles. The supporting cast includes Lillian Bond, Rita La Roy, William Collier, Sr., Edward Woods, Jessie Arnold, Rose Coughlan, II, and Jane Darwell.

Miss Carroll plays the role of Ruth Brock, a girl who works in the town bank, and is chased by every lad in town because she has a reputation for being fast. Just how she acquired it no one seems to know, because the boys never get very far with her. Nevertheless, the jealousy of the other girls in town is at a fever pitch, because the boys seem to prefer Ruth.

An Ominous Trend

SOME of the greatest milestones of modern times are marked by the onward march of collectivism. On all sides may be observed a rapid development of paternalism in government which would have been anathema only a few decades ago.

Two states are held as the outstanding example of collectivism—Soviet Russia and Fascist Italy. In the one aim of elevating state above private rights these otherwise antithetic nations meet on common ground.

Other states are little less backward in assuming a collectivist complexion, though in less spectacular fashion. Germany disburses though its various public organs nearly 50 per cent of the national income, or not much less than the Soviet Union, thus standing equally as a silent witness to the decay of individualism.

England, too, has its economic advisory council, its ramified social services, and contain many champions of an industrial subparliament on the German model. Even the division of industry into state- supervised monopolies is proposed. Ten years ago these pioneers would have incurred derision as visionary, almost dangerous Socialists.

France, often held up as the home of individualism, has recently adopted a state program for supporting workless and aged members of the community. Even the Orient, where formerly government was the antithesis of collectivism, is breaking away from tradition.

America is the last stronghold of individualism, but even here the theory that neither federal nor state governments should perform what private agencies might perform as well is losing ground. More and more government is going into business and not even its failures in agriculture and banking have stemmed the tide toward collectivism.

No More Insull-ation

THERE are teeth in the federal water power act and the federal power commission has shown a determination to use them indiscriminately where the might of utilities runs away with their season. This must be apparent, by this time, to all companies coming under jurisdiction of the act.

Recent court decisions uphold the regulatory methods of the commission and will encourage it to extend its efforts for the protection of the public. With these decisions behind it the commission will supervise utility financing to prevent another Insull bubble. This is for the protection of both the consumer and the investor.

Machinery set up will involve no dual control by federal and state agencies, but will rather abolish that dangerous twilight zone in which power interests have been given a free hand, sometimes to the deteriment of consumers and investors.

Judging from the thoroughness with which the commission is going about the enforcement of the mandate given it by congress the country in the future will be relatively secure against rate gouging and Insull-ating by interstate power enterprises. Nor need this be accomplished at the price of a stunted power development. Proper control will promote rather than stifle initiative in the utility field.

OHIO NORTHERN TO ASSIST GRADUATES

ADA, O., Dec. 1.— A plan to aid high school graduates who delayed entering college last Fall because of financial troubles was announced today by Ohio Northuniversity.

Students may save a year by enrolling for courses of instruction at Ohio Northern on January 3, and complete the freshman requirements by attending the Winter, Spring, and Summer quarters. Under this plan the students will be as far advanced as if they had entered in September.

Students may enroll in the college of Liberal Arts, including the divisions of teacher training, physical education, and music; in the colleges of Pharmacy, Law, and Engineering.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

"I'll place your money in the savings bank. If you are careful it may last you four years. Hardly more. I'll have my living from the plantation and will send you all my salary above what is required for my clothes."

The fire went out of her. She dropped her head on his knees sobbing brokenly. She knew this was not an idle threat. It was true. He couldn't go with her—knowing why she went. But—oh, I can't give up Jimmie. I can't. I can't. It isn't right of him to ask it . . . But he doesn't . . . He accepts it . . . Only, he won't be party to it . . . because he considers it . . . burglary.

"Dadums, it isn't burglary!" she sobbed. "Aunt Pam doesn't love him. Doesn't want him."

"Have you asked her for him?"

"Of course not. How could I ask her such a thing!"

"Why not? If she had a hat or a frock or a jewel that she didn't want, you wouldn't feel free to take it merely because you knew she didn't want it, would you? You'd first ask her if you might have it, wouldn't you?"

"Yes." Her voice was smothered.

"Then why take her husband without asking her consent?"

She lifted her head. Tears streamed down her face. "Oh, Dadums, how could one do a thing like that? It would be awful."

"Dear, you imply that a husband is a little more valuable perhaps than a hat or a frock or even a jewel. So much more, in fact, that the only possible way to take him is without consent."

"Jimmie doesn't belong to her," she said indignantly.

"Then when you take him, you won't consider that he belongs to you, and wisely. The disloyal belong to no country and nobody. I fear, my dear, we are falling into useless argument." He looked at his watch. "Isn't it time for you to dress?"

She rose with him. "Dadums, I've got to go," she said fiercely. "Maybe you don't know what it is to love as I love. I can't give him up. Right or wrong, I can't. It's like something eating inside of me here." She beat her fist on her breast. "I know you'll leave me, and that's tearing me all up. But I've got to go to him. When we're married you'll forgive me. You'll have to forgive me. If you won't come to me I'll come to you and you won't turn me out."

He took her in his arms. "You can always come to me, little baby girl. I'll never turn you out. No matter what you do, when you have need of your Dadums, his heart and arms will be open to you."

"But Dadums," she sobbed, "I can't take the money. I won't let you go to work in your old days. You take it and go to Paris. It will last you a long time. And I'll work and send you more."

"You haven't been fitted to work. You have no profession. Not even a business training. The money is yours. It will be placed to your account. I shall not be able to touch it even if I would."

"I won't have it!"

"How will you live?"

"I—I'll borrow the money."

He held her away from him. "How? One needs security to borrow money. What collateral have you to offer?"

She hung her head. "I'll — I'll borrow it from—Jimmie."

"Patricia, look at me."

She lifted her head defiantly.

"Do you mean to tell me that you would let Warren keep you?"

"It wouldn't be keeping me," she stormed, "if I borrowed it. It would be a loan."

After an appreciable pause, his eyes holding hers, he said slowly: "Every bank clerk who ever stole money did it under the cloak of that lie. You know it would not be a loan—Warren might loan you a hundred or so dollars as a matter of charity; but no man loans a woman large sums—enough to live on indefinitely when he knows he can never expect it back — unless she compromises herself."

"Oh!" She tore herself away from him and ran out of the room.

Face down on her bed, Patricia sobbed and sobbed, beating her fists against the pillow, talking aloud.

How could he say such things to me! How could he! My Dadums! How could he hurt me—shame me so! Compromise myself? Oh, how vile! I'll never let Jimmie Warren loan me a cent. Never! Never! Men have such vile thoughts. I never dreamed my Dadums had vile thoughts. . . .

And I won't take that money from Dadums! He can put it in my name if he wants to. . . . But I won't touch it. . . . He knows I won't. . . . Oh, I wish there was something I could do. . . . Why didn't he prepare me for a career! He didn't want me to be independent . . . that's why! . . . So he could say things to me like that. . . .

She sat up sharply, folding her legs under her, tailorwise, face swollen, eyes sullen. "Patricia Braithwait," she said, addressing her trunk, "you know that's a lie. He may think vile thoughts and say vile things to his child"—tears streamed—"because she can't help herself; but—but he doesn't do vile things. . . . No, and he doesn't say vile things because a person can't help herself either." She fell to sobbing again. He—he told me he was giving me the fifteen thousand before he said that . . . and it was only because I said — what I did about borrowing from Jimmie that he . . .

It's true I couldn't pay it back . . . . ever. . . . And Jimmie'd know it, too . . . he'd be giving it to me. . . . And Dadums says men don't give women . . . Oh. . . .

She flung herself back on the pillow and sobbed till she lost track of what it was about. . . .

The orchestra was playing downstairs. . . . She listened, unaware that she was listening. Mind drifting. Sobbing with no sense of hurt. Unreasonably sobbing.

Her father knocked. "Ready for dinner, Patricia?"

"I don't want any dinner."

She waited for the door to open. . . . He'd see what he had done to her. . . . He went away. He didn't care. He probably thought her too vile to care about. . . . After awhile there came another knock.

"Who is it?"

"Your dinner, Miss," said a man's voice.

"I didn't order any dinner."

"Your father ordered it for you."

She was on the point of telling the man to take it away. But she could not advertise her quarrel with her father. The waiter arranged the table and went out. . . .

I won't touch it. He can't hurt me like that, then send dinner up because I'm not fit to be seen . . . through his cruelty. When he comes up, he'll find it right there. . . .

She had exhausted her emotions. It was an effort to think why she was crying. She tried to recapture her sense of misery, got up and began pacing the floor, began dramatizing herself. She felt hard and indifferent. Thinking of Jimmie she no longer had any interest in him. Her love for her father was dead. Killed by his vile words. Her heart was empty of all feeling. . . . It didn't matter what became of her. . . . Of course she could never live with her father again . . . after such words had passed between them. And she never wanted to see Jimmie Warren again . . . since she knew the things men thought of. . . .

I'll go to New York and get a job—as a telephone girl, or a clerk in a store, or a waitress, or anything! I won't take a cent from vile-minded men. Not even my Dadums.

She stopped pacing the floor and began tearing her clothes from the closet. Flinging them on the floor. When the whole room was in disorder, she started packing furiously.

Presently she paused. "I'll have to take enough from him to get me to New York. But not another cent! I'll tell him he needn't deposit that money for me. I won't touch it."

The dinner music had stopped. The orchestra would be playing in the ballroom in a little while. . . . The crowd would be asking about her. What would Dadums tell them. Maybe some of the girls would come up to see if she were ill. Maybe they wouldn't. There was so much going on. . . . She sat on the floor, folding her clothes, packing them neatly in her trunk.

There! A fox trot. The dancing had started. They were all happy. She alone in all this vast hotel was utterly wretched. She fell to weeping again. She dried her tears resolutely; packing, finding relief from present pain in contemplation of her painful life as a working girl in a large city. She imagined herself in a hall bedroom. . . . She had never seen a hall bedroom . . . but she had read about them in stories.

* * *

At ten-thirty she was all packed. Ready to start her career as a poor working girl, with two trunks of Park Avenue clothes.

She sat down on the side of her bed to think. But her stomach was so empty it hindered thought. She decided to eat a little. She ate everything.

Nobody had come up to see if she were very ill or dying or anything. Not even her father who pretended to love her.

The telephone rang. Dadums at last, probably. She wouldn't answer. Let him think she had committed suicide over his cruelty. It rang again. She was very lonely and miserable and had nothing to do . . . with the music going downstairs . . . the evening just started. . . . She answered.

"Hello," . . . She made her voice weak.

"Come down, Pat," said Jack. "I have my boat here. The moon's up. Let's go to the opera."

"I can't. I have a headache." I have really, she thought— that is, my eyes ache. He thought of me, if nobody else did.

"Sea breeze will do your head good," he insisted. "Marvelous night."

"No, I don't feel like it, Jack. Really I can't."

"Are you in bed?"

"No-o."

"Not going to bed this early?"

It would be awful to go to bed and just lie and think. . . . "All right. I'll be down. Meet me on the back. I'm not dressed for evening. I don't want anybody to see me."

"All right."

She viewed her dishevelled appearance in the mirror, then snatched a pretty pale green frock from her trunk.

I better change. It'll be the last time he'll ever see me in evening dress. Tomorrow night I'll be gone. . . .

Diphtheria "Carrier" A Constant Health Menace

Dr. Copeland Urges Parents to Protect Their Children From This Disease by Means of the Schick Test

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ACCORDING to the United States public health service, thousands of children needlessly die each year from diphtheria. This happens in spite of the protection available against the disease.

Dr. Copeland

It is a pity that most of these fatalities are due to carelessness and neglect on the part of the parents. In most instances the children are believed to be suffering from some minor ailment, but in reality have diphtheria. Often the disease is not recognized until it is too late.

Diphtheria is caused by a germ called the "diphtheria bacillus". This germ grows and rapidly multiplies in the nose and throat. Sometimes it is found in milk. Contaminated milk may produce a severe epidemic of diphtheria.

Transmitting the Disease

Contrary to a common belief, the germs of this disease die quickly when exposed to the action of sunlight and dry air. The danger of transmission is chiefly from the freshly infected secretions from the nose or throat of a sufferer from this disease.

Another menace is found in that person who is a "carrier" of this disease. A diphtheria carrier is an individual who carries the diphtheria germs in his nose or throat without himself suffering from the disease. It is estimated that one to two per cent of the general population are diphtheria carriers. After an epidemic this percentage may be higher.

Diphtheria carriers and those persons who have the mild and unsuspected form of diphtheria are a constant source of danger to children and adults. They are unaware that they are dangerous and of course are constantly in contact with healthy persons. They transfer the disease, either directly or indirectly.

A common method of direct contact is through kissing. But it is probable diphtheria is most frequently transmitted by the indirect method. A common drinking cup, the drinking fountain, pencils, pins, needles, pipes, forks and spoons, are contaminated by a diphtheria carrier or infected person. Their use by others results in trouble.

Is Your Child Immune?

We are constantly exposed to the dangers of diphtheria. Fortunately, not all persons exposed to diphtheria contract the disease. This is because some have developed an "immunity" to diphtheria. This is an "acquired immunity" and is not found in children as frequently as in adults. By means of the "Schick test", it is possible to determine the presence or absence of this immunity.

If absent, it means that if the child is exposed to diphtheria, he will contract the disease. This child should receive complete protection against diphtheria by the "immunization" treatment. This is simple, consisting of the injection of three doses of "toxin-anti-toxin", given at weekly intervals. Six months after the last injection, it is advisable to repeat the Schick test to determine whether sufficient immunity against diphtheria is present.

Means of Protection

The Schick test or some modification of it, should be given every child. It affords a means of protection that should not be overlooked. It is wiser to have the Schick test made than to expose your child to the possibility and danger of contracting this serious disease.

If more attention were given to the various rules of personal hygiene there would be far less disease. If all individuals who are likely to have diphtheria were given proper immunization, eventually diphtheria would be eradicated.

Answers to Health Queries

L. M. N. Q.—1—What should a girl of 22, 5 feet 3 inches tall, weigh? 2—What causes cracking in the knee?

A.—1—She should weigh about 123 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. 2—Cracking joints are usually due to lack of synovial fluid.

E. P. Q.—Please give me some advice in regard to whooping cough.

A.—For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelop.

B. A. Q.—What do you advise for freckles?

A.—Try using equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide as a bleach.

Book Sunkist Vanities For Cliftona Theatre Next Week; From California

Coming direct from a 42-weeks engagement in Pacific coast cities, "SunKist Vanities," produced by a well-known Los Angeles company has been booked to play the Cliftona Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday matinee and night and Thursday a midnight show.

Presentation units like SunKist Vanities, well-known in the West, are fast gaining great popularity in the East through their playing the leading Fox theatres in Washington, Philadelphia, New York, also in Springfield, Worcester, Hartford and Boston. When the curtain goes up things happen without delay. The Melody Trio are in a class by themselves when it comes to playing real music. These three girls, former members of the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra, are all soloists of the first rank and their trio numbers range from classical to popular. They also furnish music for remainder of the show. Those "California Steppers," Rosita and Perez, fling their heels so fast and well that it makes you dizzy trying to follow. They offer a wide variety of dances, featuring their own original "Indiana Adagio" with beautiful costumes and special music. Furnishing a brand new line of comedy, Harry Berry introduces all the acts besides contributing a fine line of comedy himself. Harry's versatility stamps him as a "One Man Circus." He sings, dances, juggles, tumbles, plays several musical instruments, also offers an original comedy "bottle-sitting" trick that's hot.

Miss Theo Keith, who hails from Boston, is no doubt one of the world's foremost lady cornetists. She has been proclaimed as such by no less an authority than Herbert L. Clarke the renowned band leader. Miss Keith's smooth execution and triple-tongue playing is the work of a master. As an extra added attraction, Rex, the Canine Prodigy, offers an act all his own. Rex has naturally inherited a gift for the stage through his three generations of bow-wow ancestors having been born and raised on the famous Show Boat "Cotton Blossom." There are many other features in the show, including a colorful and fast Grand Finale entitled "Circus Day."

The feature picture program accompanying this attraction will be "Evening For Sale."

SANTA CLAUS WILL PILOT AIRPLANE

Many, many times stories of the prowess of Santa Claus as a driver of reindeers has been told but now he is filling a different role. With snow a scarcity in Ohio this winter, especially in Pickaway-co, old Saint Nick has learned to fly an airplane so he can get around the state in quicker and more certain fashion.

He arrives here next Wednesday and will haul passengers in his plane until Dec. 12.

Tickets for rides with Santa Claus are being provided by the Crist Department store, Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., Circleville Oil Co., and the Circleville Tire and Repair Co. R. L. Brehmer Greenhouse is another firm participating in bringing Santa Claus here but is not giving tickets for plane rides.

The Christmas shopping season will be officially opened when Santa comes next Wednesday.

INFANT IS DEAD

Ernest Reid, Jr., 9-hours-old son of Ernest and Lottie Reid of 380 Walnut-st, died Wednesday afternoon and was interred in Forest cemetery Thursday morning by Mader & Ebert.

MONROE-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

Janice Liston won first prize in the contest to get members for the P. T. A. She got 18 members, Norma Snyder 16 and third, Billy Trout with seven members. A total of 52 members were gained in this contest.

William Grabill of the fourth grade won the prize for getting the most members for the P. T. A. He had 23 members.

The fourth grade room obtained 37 members in all for the P. T. A. membership.

Several are still absent from the fourth grade, with colds, whooping cough, scarlet fever and diphtheria.

The boys and girls having perfect attendance in the fourth grade are, Junior Smith, Margaret Ann Smith, Katheryn Smith, Winifred Lemaster, Pearl Long, Ben Long, Thomas William Downs, Donald Crawford, Gladys Timmons and William Grabill.

Dale Smith of the fifth grade, is absent on account of sickness.

The Athenian Literary Society composed of the 7th and 8th grade gave a short Thanksgiving program. The program was given by the following: Lucille Timmons, Ernest Grabill, Eugene Campbell, Betty Seward, David Stoer, Weldon Hill, George Terflinger, Jeannette Pemberton, Juanita Kellar. Each one gave something original. The society will have another program in several weeks given by the other members.

The junior high school students under the supervision of Mr. Costlow, held a contest on teeth cleaning. The time given for this contest being three weeks. The junior high was divided into five sections and each section had a leader. The leader of the first row was Elizabeth Albright, the second row leader was Kenneth Walters, the third row leader was Betty Seward, the fourth row leader was Franklin Bailey and the fifth row leader was Ruth Willis. This contest was carried on with the idea that each row was a machine and the students were the tires and various parts. The leader was called the pilot. Each student was supposed to clean his teeth at least once a day and each time they cleaned their teeth it counted a lap for their automobile. The names of the autos represented the rows in order were, first row, Austin; second row, Pontiac; third row, Chevrolet; fourth row, Pierce Arrow; fifth row, Rockne. The highest possible score in this contest was 130 laps. The fourth row represented by Pierce Arrow with Franklin Bailey as the pilot, won the race, their being only one boy who missed cleaning his teeth twice. The Pontiac with Kenneth Walters as the pilot, finished second with a score of 114. The Austin, with Elizabeth Albright the leader, finished third and the Rockne finished fourth with a score of 101. The Chevrolet with Betty Seward as pilot, finished last with a score of 100. The aim of this contest was to help the student get the habit of cleaning his teeth while they are young. The following never missed a day in cleaning their teeth: Esther Furniss Owen Beauman, Eugene Campbell, Judith Ann McCoy Franklin Bailey, Charles Wilkey, Darwin Allen, Weldon Hill, Ruth Haller, Robert Lewis, Kathryn Kneisley, Wilda Mae Wilkey Jeannette Pemberton, Laralie Grabill, Lucille Timmons, George Terflinger, Edwin Walters, Sarah Rutherford, Ruth Willis, Helen Howard, Eldon Crawford, Hazel Smith, Betty Seward, Elizabeth Albright, Ernest Grabill, Ruth McGath, Pauline Neal, Charles Boyd, Verne Longberry, Carl Hosler, Juanita Kellar, Grace Peart, Urcel McGath, David Stoer.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

Carole Lombard can take it.

She proved that fact conclusively to Pat O'Brien, Director Eddie Buzzell and about thirty hard boiled workers on the set of Columbia's picture, "Virtue," when she let the powerful Mr. O'Brien slap her face hard nineteeen times.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, it should be made known that a punch often can be pulled, or faked. But a slap is different. You can't pull a slap. Try it some time. Especially a resounding slap such as the one O'Brien was ordered to hand the blonde Miss Lombard.

O'Brien has to slap her 19 times, because it was necessary to rehearse the scene, then to photograph it from several different angles and, because it was such an important dramatic scene in the film, all shots were taken several times.

"Virtue," showing Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre, was adapted by Robert Riskin, author of "American Madness," from the novel by Ethel Hill. In addition to Miss Lombard and O'Brien, the cast includes Willard Robertson, Ward Bond, Shirley Grey and Ed Le Saint.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Hot Saturday," the story of a girl who walked home from a Saturday-night date, but awoke Sunday morning to find she might have saved herself the trouble, has been booked for the Cliftona Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

Cary Grant, Nancy Carroll and Randolph Scott have the leading roles. The supporting cast includes Lillian Bond, Rita La Roy, William Collier, Sr., Edward Woods, Jessie Arnold, Rose Coughlan, II, and Jane Darwell.

Miss Carroll plays the role of Ruth Brock, a girl who works in the town bank, and is chased by every lad in town because she has a reputation for being fast. Just how she acquired it no one seems to know, because the boys never get very far with her. Nevertheless, the jealousy of the other girls in town is at a fever pitch, because the boys seem to prefer Ruth.

Fashion Solons Decree Change in Existing Silhouette. Simplicity of Line and Importance of Accessories Stressed in Advance Modes.

Declaring that milady has grown weary of the present silhouette with its flat diaphragm, the voices have spoken from the Olympus of fashion and decreed that a change is necessary, for after all, they admit, it is women and not the designers who make the styles. So the coming season is to see many radical changes. One of the most important is the position of the waistline. It is to be lower, and already the new vogue is proving its popularity. Above are two creations by the celebrated Patou of Paris, which give an idea of what the latest styles in evening clothes are like. At left is an evening gown of white imperial satin, girdled with a belt of brilliant red velvet, fastened by a buckle. Note the waistline so much nearer the hipline. The frock has a simulated tunic blouse and a diagonal neckline. In center is another gorgeous creation of coral crepe, with an interesting cross-strap decolletage. The low waistline is here obtained by three seamed inserts which finish in the sash bow at the back. At right is a formal gown, worn by Irene Ware, screen actress. The bodice of this creation is form-fitting to below the hips where it joins the skirt, which is cut on bias lines. The top of the bodice is of flesh colored chiffon and has a deep cut neckline.

BUILT . . . .
To Serve and Endure
Here and there across the face of the globe are great monuments to man's will to serve humanity. These monuments, sometimes feats of engineering, sometimes triumphs of business organization, are always destined to endure, not for any private gain, but for the general good.
Of such a character is a strong Banking institution. It must be founded upon principles of service, and built up solidly from that foundation.
